It is desirable to have all the [illegible] represented at the convention

[illegible] H. A. W. TOURTELLOTTE, Secretary. Chairman.

The Rev. C. E. Northrop, said in the Connecticut prohibition convention that the prohibitory amendment in Rhode Island will never be enforced. But he fails to see the reason. The majority in a state may vote for a prohibition amendment, but the minority in the state may have the majority in the large cities. If so it is practically impossible to enforce the law in those cities. The true solution is local option. Those communities in favor of prohibition can enforce a prohibition law. But it is useless to attempt to enforce a prohibition law where the majority is against it. It would be much better to attempt to change this sentiment, than to bring law into contempt by enforcing a law which cannot be enforced.

The accusation cannot be made this year that the republican party has raised the sectional issue. The democrats have raised the issue by leaving the raw products of the south protected and taking the tariff off of northern products. The claim is that the Mills bill was drawn not to give us free trade but to lighten burdensome taxes and at the same time remove the surplus. In accordance with this declared policy they take the duty off of wool and leave it on rice and sugar. Yet by taking the duty off of wool they reduce the surplus $6,000,000, while by taking the duty off of sugar it would have been reduced ten times as much. By taking the duty off of wool they injure nearly every farmer in New England the middle states Ohio and the large stock interests of the Rocky mountain region. By taking the duty off of sugar they would only affect an area of county in Louisiana as large as a single county in Colorado. Taking the duty off of wool will not help the consumer materially but the abolition of the duty on sugar will help every man woman and child in this country. If the claim is a just one that the Mills bill is drawn with three ideas to wit. First to reduce the surplus second, to relieve the country of burdensome taxation and thirdly so as not to injure any industry then the democrats are grossly inconsistent in selecting wool instead of sugar for the free list. The only explanation is that one is a southern product and the other is a northern one. There is no justification. This is a promise of what is to come if the three branches of the government fall into southern hands. We shall have a government which will favor southern interests in an outrageously partial manner. Other things being equal there might be some excuse for a party made up of southerners favoring their own section. But when the party selects wool instead of sugar for the free list it shows that the south will be favored as against the north under any circumstances.

New England is the only section of the country that is likely to be solid for Harrison and Morton. This is the opinion of the leading republican paper on the question of a sensible tariff bill.

The report that Secretary Fairchild is the author of certain queries to the [illegible] of the country that tariff [illegible] a substitute for the Mills bill but to content themselves with defeating that. The reason given is that it will be better politics. In our judgment it will be a poor kind of politics and a failure which will take from the strength of the party before the country.

This tariff agitation will continue until the surplus is disposed of. Except for that surplus the Mills bill never would have been dreamed of. With a surplus each congress will see a new [illegible] to be dug [illegible] fast track. To the [illegible] of that idea it must be evident that an [illegible] but cutting off of the surplus revenue is the only way to [illegible] agitation. They [illegible] understand this thoroughly and they [illegible] to have the surplus [illegible] it is not enough for the republicans [illegible] give the people [illegible] the election. They should [illegible] their policy. The democratic [illegible] this is the Mills bill a measure which even the democrats cannot defend except that it is something. The republicans leave it in the power of the country to [illegible] that will show how they propose to reduce the surplus and between the two plans leave the country to decide. Nothing [illegible] The presidential contest to be fought on this question and it would be an exhibition of political weakness for the republicans not to [illegible] [illegible] opposite the [illegible] definite and far more acceptable [illegible] The democrats will [illegible] to know what they are going [illegible] they can. The only cry of the democrats that counts for anything is the [illegible] While the republicans have nothing to offer. If congress adjourns without any republican move it will deprive them of a great advantage which they otherwise might gain. In short we cannot [illegible] by that the republican masses demand of [illegible] the reduction of a bill which will unquestionably reduce the revenues at least [illegible] without disturbing our industries. The promise of passing such a measure at the earliest moment will secure the country in November and perhaps even [illegible] re-adoption by the present congress in December.

From New England certainly the republican senators can and [illegible] with a failure to [illegible] necessity of not faltering or [illegible] It is largely with them to determine which party will convince the people that [illegible] of keeping [illegible] of [illegible]

The party was a little dazed by its platform but is recovering in fine style. It stands squarely on the platform of 1884. Old republicans who favored that have no excuse for not voting for Harrison and Morton.

LADIES' DRESS.

Some Valuable Hints About the Science of Artistic Attire.

London July 16 1888

The other day I heard a distinguished artist enlarge on the laws of dress and noted down some of his many suggestions. "In placing the waist line," said the artist, "many women make a most egregious mistake. Being anxious to have a tapering form they push the waist line lower and lower. If it were not for the bulwark of the hip bones there is no knowing where the dreadful [illegible] would be arrested. Now, unfortunately many women's hips are too short already, and even when such is not the case the lowering of the waist destroys all sense of proportion. Nothing gives such an effect of height as length of the lower limbs. From the top of the head to the waist should be one-third of the whole length of that [illegible] and [illegible] once destroyed. This you will find is the measurement in the Venus of Medici. But when the sculptor wishes to convey the impression of greater majesty, as in the Diana, the distance from the knee to the waist is lengthened by raising the waist line. Take two statues of the Venus and the Diana of exactly the same height, and the latter will strike you as being much taller. So ladies if you wish to appear tall raise the line of the waist.

"A simple way to convince yourselves of the truth of this law is by cutting out two paper figures of the same height, and then lengthen the waist of one. Place them a little distance apart and you will tell [illegible] in spite of the fact revealed by the tape measure that the doll with the shorter waist is the taller of the two.

"It is for this reason that the Empire dress, which is now so fashionable is so unsuitable and becoming to short people."

What had the observing artist to say wise for stout people? This: "That a great deal can be done by careful study of dress to apparently diminish the size has been proved by Mrs. Kendall the popular London actress who though very stout manages by judicious choice of colors and combinations of contrasting shades to appear on the stage like a willowy young girl.

"Tall people should avoid stripes for they suggest length; stout people should favor them especially for skirts. Further a stout person should never wear an entirely plain bodice. Lately I have seen some new designs that take from the width of the shoulders. The bodice is of cloth or silk with pieces of a darker shade of velvet cut in a half moon shape the convex side of the velvet following the seam of the armhole or for the same object is gained by introducing V shaped pieces of dark velvet into the sleeve right at the shoulder. And of a band of a darker shade than the dress material begins at the side seam under the arm a little above the waist line and is carried some way below the waist in front it gives trimness to the figure.

A loose fronted jacket bodice answers the same purpose. The back is made tight fitting the fronts of the jacket loose and loose and the loose [illegible] gathered at the neck and falling over [illegible] fold [illegible] the waist [illegible] any excess of [illegible] If the waist is not really small but has a waist but large in proportion to the rest of the body a tight [illegible] vest and [illegible] for the loose fronted jacket bodice described. The belt of the waist that the [illegible] with [illegible] conveniently [illegible]

For a person who is both short and stout such a jacket should be [illegible] both back and front [illegible] the back from the hips. The [illegible] the [illegible] point [illegible] seam [illegible] The sleeves should be rather [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] arm. The [illegible] should [illegible] an [illegible] sleeves carry the [illegible] [illegible] is always [illegible] cutting [illegible]

In the [illegible] to all sorts and conditions of women as [illegible] pretty arrangement [illegible] Englishwomen prefer a [illegible] to dress in the morning [illegible] a tailor made gown with plain white linen collar and cuffs. Such a costume is certainly suitable for John Bull's daughters as an active race and [illegible] but for the [illegible] their fresh [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] Parisienne [illegible] to breakfast with a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

FIREMEN'S TOURNAMENT

Eleventh Annual Meeting of the State Firemen's Association at Aspen

The completion to Aspen of the Mid land railroad a Colorado line of which Colorado Springs and Aspen are the pres ent terminus and the extension of the great Rio Grande system to this point are two important facts that have excited the wonder of men of affairs of engi neers and the world in general. But these great enterprises were built for a pur pose. It was not the fame of Aspen that attracted them, but it was the tangible fact that within the palm of its hand it covered vaults of silver and lead that would forever mountain it as a great objective point of travel and shipping depot for all the necessities of a rapidly increasing population. Every man woman and child should see Aspen in her summer glory, should feel the bracing effects of her ever inherent climate in short, should gaze upon the lifting wonder of the day Whether one choose the Midland or the Rio Grande in his ascension of heralding a magnificent panorama of nature's most surprising phases and lofty effects The purpose of this article is not to de pict them but that every one should see them with their own eyes. These two railroad companies have offered trans portation for one half the usual rates and thus is afforded a fine opportunity for all to gratify a natural desire to see Aspen and the great attraction at which which will be held on August 14th to 19th inclusive. That this will be the greatest event of its kind ever witnessed in Colorado is attested by the fact that eight hook and ladder teams and twelve hose teams accompanied by five bands have already entered and are now in training for the event. The track at As pen is located on a thoroughfare in a nat ural location that has been devoted to this purpose by the city and cleared with drawn in order that it might be rendered the fastest track in Colorado. Such it undoubtedly is to-day. The common council have wisely appropriated $5000 and the citizens have added $4000 to the sum which will be expended in the en tertainment of the city's guests and fire men on that occasion. Let no one hes itate on the probability of accommo dations. Our hotels and restaurants are ample to feed thousands of visitors, while an active committee has contract ed for sleeping accommodations sufficient for a multitude. The spirit which dictated the generous donations by our citizens is also the spirit that will ab solutely forbid excessive charges during the season of Colorado's Olympian games.

Base ball games between rival clubs of the western slope have been arranged and foot and horse races will form at tractive features of this great carnival of Colorado's youth manhood. The magnificent and unselfish services ren dered each community by its volunteer firemen the recognized benefits accru ing from the development of sports of manly and useful nature the desire to acquire information of the wonderful resources of the great western slope the sense of pleasure experienced in a royal feast upon the grand things of nature all these are common inheritance and will combine to render the state tournament of 1885 the greatest and most enjoyable in the annals of Colorado. Further in formation in regard to the firemen's races can be obtained by addressing the ex ecutive committee, San Fremstad or nament.

COLORADO CITY ITEMS

The delay in building the Fountain is caused by a difference in opinion of the councilmen as to which thoroughfare is the most desirable to open up.

Mr J F Clark's street sprinkler is doing good service. Colorado avenue is kept in fine condition from the school house to Stockbridge's warehouse.

Interest in politics is waning. The last democratic meeting called out scarce ly a corporal's guard and the meeting of the republican club is pretty much with out date. The campaign is not far enough advanced and the weather is too warm for much political demonstra tion.

The locomotive engineers ball in Odd Fellows hall on Tuesday night was a financial as well as a social success.
About one hundred couples were pres ent and a neat sum was realized. It is un derstood that the money will be donated to the fund for the relief of the Burling ton strikers.

MARY JANE'S LETTER

How Congressmen Play Poker Some Other Gossip.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, July 28.—One afternoon during the recent pleasant weather after the rain had all moved off I lay wasting my precious time in Pennsylvania avenue Got with a gentleman who knows every body and everything when two western senators one from Montana and one from the south passed in a carriage. The quartette was distributed equally and they were laughing and talking like a party of excursionists just arrived with a pocketful of gold and in a mood to spread it on with.

"Now truthfully now for you said I and I'll tell it to me. By I presume as they are all early and the days fine they are going the river road in a drove I recognize one

I guessed it exactly I said with a sigh only you haven't. They are going out to a certain room to play poker. It is every afternoon and they have great fun I've been with them.

But I'm sure they are playing poker very little, said I horrified.

"Well no not every afternoon he said I jokingly. I'll modify that state ment a little they don't play on Sunday, that is I'm very sure of.

There was not much consolation in that so I walked along in silence. I see is not so much that nature played poker, for pete I saying in the best of ulated family circles that they played in the days of the old Puritans to the full ex tent of shutting their doors to the field fun earnings instead of waiting till frightened slipping in through the alley and the back door.

When I told Dickey of this little epi sode she said I wonder when women get to be senators how long it will take them to learn to put in their spare time in such fashion."

Just as soon as they get to be senators said I, for misfortunes never come singly.

Stories are still being told at Amelia Rives Chanler—who, by the way, I under stand, has promised the bishop of Vir ginia not to write any more for publica tion until the expiration of three years and her emotional paroxysm "The Quick or the Dead" and the latest is on the wife of a certain southern senator who has a daughter or two. The lady is not an expert in any branch of learning and she is less so in literary matters than in most other the everyday. She had heard of the Virginia authoress and shortly after the story appeared she picked up a copy of Lippincott's and took it home.

There, she said to the daughter, there is a book written by a southern woman. If you must read read some thing that is written by one of our own people and not by some of those Massa chusetts Yankees.

The daughter took the book obediently and laid it away to read at her first leisure. A few days later the mother heard the story very thoroughly discussed by a party of ladies and started for home on a run.

"Daughter," she said excitedly, "have you read that book I gave you the other day?"

"No, mamma" replied the daughter, with some trepidation, owing to her dere liction of duty.

"Well, give it to me right away. I wouldn't have you read it for the world.
It's so awful thing, and no young girl should read it. I'll destroy the vile thing."

Of course she was compelled to obey, and she gave up the story, notwithstand ing it was the work of a young southern woman. But before the next day's sun had set she had read another copy, and was passing on its merits and demerits with a calmness and coldness which would have challenged the admiration of a Datonian.

Col. Nick Bell the charming and ac complished superintendent of Macy mails a bachelor with out a gray hair, and still not a boy, twenty years ago was out in the Dakotas selling goods over the counter and getting his mail about once a month, if the weather was good and the Indians polite. Flour was worth a dollar a pound and other things in proportion, and business was rushing, but young Bell was only a clerk and his salary was not making him rich very rap idly with board at $100 a month. One day a miner came in and offered Bill a claim for a fifty pound sack of flour. The clerk's possessions were not quite that ex tensive, but he prevailed upon his em ployer to lend him a sack, which he at once transferred to the miner, accepting in lieu thereof the claim. Then he raised a little money on it, went to work dig ging and shoveling and plowing out the ground and one morning he found what he was looking for and in a day or so he was offered $85,000 for his sack of flour. But he saw visions in the ground and re fused to sell. For a while he took out the silver quartz in quantities. Then, suddenly, the vein dropped away to almost nothing, as veins do, and his visions be gan to go over to the wrong side of his profit and loss account. Finally he sold out for $15,000, and glad of it and a new man took hold. It was all risk, like a lottery ticket; but some men are born lucky, and Bell hadn't long to wait until he saw that vein widen as it went deeper, and finally to see his sack of flour sold for half a million of dollars, and all he got was the cold comfort of knowing that it was all his, only he didn't hold on long enough. He isn't worth half a million today, but he is an excellent citizen, a popular fellow, and has plenty to live on.

Some "society folks" are still in town.
I met a lady just after the last hot spell.

'Ah still in town?' said I banteringly.

'Oh yes' she replied, 'and since the weather has modified I would as soon be here as anywhere.'

I hastened to ask her what "modified" did mean anyway. MARY JANE.

We have received from the Colorado land and Improvement company which owns the hot springs at Glenwood 5 copies of the analysis of these springs, made by Professor Chandler who is the greatest authority in this country on mineral water analysis.

T. W. HARRISON, signal Corps.

Base ball today. Colorado Springs Grays vs. the El Paso's.

Judge Severy, of the county court, went to Longmont yesterday.

Postoffice Inspector Branch, of Denver, paid the postoffice in this city a visit yesterday.

Marshal Frank Bowers, of Manitou, came over to the metropolis yesterday for a few hours.

Three drunks and a fight stood up in Justice Shideler's court yesterday and received light fines.

[illegible] returned from Salt Lake City Tuesday, and is practically cured of [illegible] in this city.

Mr. J. [illegible], well known to the old timers of Colorado Springs, is stopping at The Antlers with his family.

Dr. S. T. Beery has removed his dental parlors from the opera house building to rooms 8 and 9 Union block.

Miss Fannie Aiken, who has been spending the past [illegible] Chicago, returned home for a month's visit yesterday.

Quite a large delegation of the colored people of this city went to Pueblo yesterday to attend the anniversary of Puritan lodge G. U. O. O. F.

Rev. Wm. Howard, pastor of the First Baptist church of Austin, Texas, with [illegible] N. [illegible] at Green Mountain Falls next Sunday at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Chic W. Gardner, who has been in this city for some time, left for California last night. He expects to join Sells Brothers circus for a tour of Australia.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Olivia Collier occurred at the residence, No. 21 North Weber street, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. A. R. Kiefer officiated.

Mr. E. W. Tassell, of Chicago, representative of the well known Punch cigar factories, returned to the city accompanied by his family, yesterday. They are quartered at The Antlers.

The game of ball between the Colorado Springs Grays and the El Paso's today will be well worth seeing, and will be a test of the merits of the two clubs as they will both play for blood.

Mr. Frank E. Oller, who was engaged in the phonograph business here last year, returned yesterday from a protracted visit in Kansas. He reports the heat as being almost unbearable in western Kansas.

The district of the new mail carrier will include all that portion of the city north of [illegible]. This will enable the other carriers to take in portions of the city which have not been covered heretofore.

The many strangers in the city find the electric clock exhibition a pleasant place to visit. An effort is being made to have the exhibition taken to Manitou. The floating device is a beautiful illusion. No one should fail to see it.

Mr. H. S. Cable, son of President Cable, of the Rock Island road, who has been connected with the C., K. & N. surveying corps in their work near this city for the past six months, returned to his home in Chicago yesterday.

Mr. J. J. Lamar, cashier of the new Exchange bank, arrived in the city on Tuesday night from his former home at Mankato, Kansas, and will hereafter devote his time to the business of the bank. Mr. D. Heron, the president of the bank, will arrive with his family as soon as the bank is ready for business which it is thought will be in the course of the next ten days or two weeks. The work of laying the handsome new tile floor will begin this morning.

In all probability no effort will be made to make the owners of the Cheyenne toll road comply with the state law regarding such thoroughfares. The law compels the owners of such roads to have their rates of toll approved by the county commissioners at certain periods. This has not been done, and according to Chairman Skinner, any person who pays toll on the road, has a right to recover it through process of law.

Mr. J. E. Hundley, the well-known liveryman, has issued a circular setting forth the attractions of a trip to the summit of Pikes Peak over the new wagon road. The road is finished to within a mile and a half of the summit but by next Saturday night it is expected to be within a half mile of the signal station. Mr. Hundley is making a specialty of carrying passengers upon the road. Persons desiring to make the trip can leave the Midland depot in this city at 8 a m and arrive at Cascade in time to be taken to the summit and return here for supper. Mr. Hundley is only charging $5 for conveying passengers to the end of the road, although when completed $8 will be charged. This includes toll. Those who have been over the new road pronounce it the finest mountain road in the world. The steepest grade on the road is only ten per cent, and the narrowest place is twelve feet, and the view too grand to be described.

Barry & Fay will appear at the opera house next Saturday in their great success, "McKenna's Flirtation." The Aspen Times in speaking of their performance in that city says: The rink was crowded last evening upon the occasion of the presentation of that most laughable Irish comedy "McKenna's Flirtation" by the Barry & Fay company. Messrs. Barry and Fay are masters of their business, and in their hands this farce comedy was such a treat as had not been enjoyed by those who composed the audience for many a long day. The fun was continuous from the beginning to the end. The plot is very simple, but gives a world of opportunities for the most ridiculous situations. McKenna receives a letter intended for his wife. It was written by his friends describing and he believed it to be from his friend's wife. He concludes he has made a mash and gets about to celebrate it. A [illegible] lawyer and a number of [illegible] women interfere and [illegible] his friend challenging him to fight a duel. They meet and [illegible] the blood, after the situation is [illegible] and all is happy. Miss Cole as Mrs. Ryan does remarkably well and her singing calls forth the house. She has a very fine contralto voice that added a charm to the evening's entertainment.

Manager Sye received a letter from Hugh Fay yesterday saying that he will not be able to give a matinee [illegible] performance of Irish Aristocracy, as the company was scheduled especially for their great success. McKenna's Flirtation, and being unable to please the people they would appear on that day at the opera house next Saturday evening. Barry and Fay are playing to crowded houses through Colorado and will no [illegible]

You can fool some of the people all the time and you can fool all of the people some of the time, but you can not fool all the people all the time.

Merchants who publish silly advertisements should ponder on this profitably.

Is it better to deal with Clothiers who claim everything and show very little, or to patronize a house that professes only what it can perform?

We have a great stock of things that men and boys wear. Our Clothing is carefully selected and well made. Choose your apparel HERE, because we can fit you, please you—and after you once learn the merits of our goods, we believe you will continue to use them.
